The Used Vehicle Warranty Law protects consumers who buy used vehicles from a dealer or private party in Massachusetts. (M.G.L. c. 90 §7N 1/4) Dealers must provide consumers with a written warranty against defects that impair the vehicle's use or safety, and requires private parties to disclose any known use or safety defects.

The Used Vehicle Warranty Law provides you with protections and remedies, including mandatory repairs, refunds, or repurchases. It does not cover all vehicles or all defects, and not all problems will qualify your vehicle for repurchase.

If you purchased a vehicle fewer than 14 days ago, the fastest way to get relief may be through the "Lemon Aid Law ."

Vehicles Covered:

The law applies to used cars, vans, trucks and demonstration vehicles not covered by the New Car Lemon Law, and which:

- are sold by a Massachusetts dealer or private party,
- cost at least $700 (dealer sales only),
- have fewer than 125,000 miles on the odometer when sold (dealer sales only).

Demonstration or executive vehicles are covered under the law under certain circumstances. You must first determine whether the vehicle meets the requirements of the New Car Lemon Law. You may use the Used Vehicle Warranty Law only if you do not qualify to be accepted for the New Car Lemon Law.

Vehicles Not Covered:

The following are not covered under the Used Vehicle Warranty Law:

- motorcycles, mopeds, dirtbikes;
- leased vehicles;
- auto homes, and vehicles built primarily for off-road use;
- any vehicle used primarily for business purposes, or purchased by, owned by or registered to a business

Private Party Sales:

The Used Vehicle Warranty Law applies differently to a vehicle purchased from a private party than it does if purchased from a dealer. Under the law, a dealer is anyone who sells four or more vehicles in a 12 month period.

The Used Vehicle Warranty Law requires private party sellers to inform buyers about any and all known defects which impair the safety or substantially impair the use of the vehicle. The law applies to all private party sales regardless of sales price or mileage. If you discover a defect that impairs the vehicle's safety or substantially impairs the use, and can prove that the seller knew about the defect but failed to disclose it, you may cancel the sale within thirty days of purchase. The seller must refund the amount you paid for the vehicle, less 15 cents per mile of use.

Private parties are also bound by the Lemon Aid Law.

DEALER SALES

Defects Covered: Only defects that impair your vehicle's use or safety are covered.

Defects are not covered if they:

- affect appearance only;
- are covered by the manufacturer's express warranty and the dealer assures that the repairs were made;
- are caused by negligence, abuse, vandalism, or accidents unrelated to the defect;
- are caused by repair attempts made by someone other than the dealer, its agent, or the manufacturer; or
- are caused by substantial change made by you to the vehicle (such as installing a sunroof that was not part of the vehicle when you bought it).

Dealer Warranty: Anyone who sells four or more vehicles in a one-year period is a dealer under the Used Vehicle Warranty Law. Dealer warranties cannot be waived under any circumstances. The dealer must give you a signed, dated, correct copy of the limited used vehicle warranty at the time you purchase the vehicle. The warranty requires the dealer to repair any defect that impairs the vehicle's use or safety.

Warranty Length: The coverage depends on the mileage of the vehicle at the time of purchase as outlined below:

Mileage	Warranty Period
Less than 40,000 miles	90 days or 3,750 miles, whichever comes first
40,000 to 79,999 miles	60 days or 2,500 miles, whichever comes first
80,000 to 124,999 miles	30 days or 1,250 miles, whichever comes first
125,000 miles or over	No express warranty

If the true mileage of the vehicle is unknown at the time of the sale, the warranty period is calculated according to the age of the vehicle as outlined below:

Age of Vehicle	Warranty Period
3 years old or less	90 days or 3,750 miles, whichever comes first
More than 3 and less than 6 years old	60 days or 2,500 miles, whichever comes first
More than 6 years old	30 days or 1,250 miles, whichever comes first

Warranty Extension: Your warranty is extended by one day for each day the vehicle is out of service for repairs, and by one mile for each mile it is driven while repairs are being made. In addition, any repair performed on a covered defect during the warranty period carries its own 30-day warranty. This warranty begins the day the repair is completed and can continue after the original warranty on the car as a whole expires. See the Consumer Affairs Warranty Extension Reference Chart, located at www.mass.gov/oca, if you need more information on these tolling and extension provisions.

Dealer Fails to Provide Correct Warranty: If the dealer does not give you a warranty or gives you one that is incomplete or inaccurate, you are still entitled to warranty repairs. Your warranty, however, will not begin to expire until the dealer gives you a complete, accurate copy of the warranty.

Warranty Repairs: The defects must arise during the warranty period. You must return the vehicle to the dealer for repair no more than five business days after the expiration date of the warranty period. The dealer may charge you a one-time $100 deductible, but only if this amount is written on your copy of the warranty.

Dealer Refunds: The limited used vehicle warranty provided by the dealer gives you the right to a refund if the vehicle was either:

- repaired 3 times for the same use or safety defect that continued to exist or recurred during the warranty period, OR
- out of service by reason of repair or invalid refusal to repair for at least 11 business days during the warranty period, not necessarily all at one time.

NOTE: Business day is defined as Monday through Friday, except for state or federal holidays. When counting the number of business days your car has been out of service, any part of a business day counts as a whole day.

Waiting for Parts: If the dealer needs to order parts during a repair attempt, the days out of service while waiting for parts do not count toward the 11 business day requirement of the law. However, your warranty will extend by one day for each day you are waiting for the parts. A maximum of 21 calendar days during the warranty period will not be counted toward the 11 business day limit if parts are ordered. All business days after the 21st day will count. For more information on warranty extensions, see our Warranty Extension Reference Chart, located at www.mass.gov/oca.

Dealer Refuses Repairs: The dealer may only refuse repairs if you have refused a dealer's offer to buy back the car for the full purchase price. (See next section, Dealer Repurchase.) If the dealer has not offered to repurchase the vehicle, then the dealer must repair all use or safety defects. If the dealer refuses to accept the vehicle for repairs when you present it in person, then the vehicle will be considered "out of service" beginning that day. This and any following business days waiting for the vehicle to be repaired will count toward the 11 business days out of service requirement for a refund. The same rule applies if the dealer fails to take the vehicle within 3 business days of a telephone or written request for a repair.

Dealer Repurchase: The dealer has the right to offer to buy the car back for the full repurchase price instead of making repairs. You are responsible for helping to determine the refund amount by giving the dealer copies of your receipts and other documents for each cost to be reimbursed. The dealer must make the repurchase offer in writing. Under the law, you have at least five business days from when you receive the dealer's offer to decide whether to accept the offer.

WARNING: If the dealer offers you a full refund under the law, and you refuse to accept it, YOU WILL NOT BE ENTITLED TO FURTHER WARRANTY REPAIRS UNDER THE WRITTEN WARRANTY PROVIDED BY THE DEALER. If you do not agree with the dealer's calculation of the repurchase amount, you can ask the Office of Consumer Affairs and Business Regulation (OCABR) to help calculate it. If the OCABR determines that the full repurchase amount is higher than the amount offered by the dealer, the dealer may either offer you the amount determined by the OCABR or withdraw the offer to repurchase. If the dealer withdraws the offer, you will still be entitled to warranty repairs and can apply for arbitration, if you qualify.

Keeping Records: Maintain complete records from the day you buy your vehicle. Save the written warranty; request a copy of the manufacturer's warranty, if applicable; and keep a diary of problems and repair attempts including the dates of service, the problem you reported and mileage at the time of repairs. Get a copy of the work order filled out by the dealer every time you bring the car in for service. Dealers are required by the Attorney General's Motor Vehicle Regulations to give you a work order even if repairs are free. (940 CMR 5.00).

Returning the vehicle: If the dealer is going to buy back your vehicle, you will need to work together to meet and exchange the vehicle and its title for a refund. You must transfer the title back to the dealer.

If your title is at the Registry of Motor Vehicles, contact the Title Division at (617) 351-9550. Explain that you are returning your vehicle under the Used Vehicle Warranty Law, and request that a certificate of title be issued to you as soon as possible. If your vehicle is financed, you will need to get a lien release from the finance company. The lien release will enable the Registry to issue a title in your name. Also, you will need to work with the dealer and the finance company to arrange for the dealer to pay the finance company the portion of the loan that is still owed.

ASSERTING YOUR RIGHTS

If the dealer will not refund your money, you have several options. You may seek mediation, arbitration, or file suit in court.

Mediation: This allows both parties to reach a mutually acceptable solution with the help of a facilitator. Mediation is voluntary, requiring both parties' consent. Consumer Affairs offers a face-to-face mediation program for Lemon Law disputes; you may also apply for mediation through your Warranty Extension Reference Chart, located at www.mass.gov/oca.

Arbitration: Arbitration is an informal and inexpensive way to resolve your complaint. In arbitration, the consumer and the dealer present evidence about the condition of the vehicle to an impartial person. To qualify for arbitration, you must meet the criteria outlined in this pamphlet. The purpose of the arbitration hearing is to determine whether or not your vehicle qualifies for a refund under the Used Vehicle Warranty Law. This arbitration is "all or nothing." If the arbitrator determines that your vehicle meets the standards of the law, you will be awarded a full refund. If the arbitrator decides that your vehicle is not a "lemon," there will be no award, although you may have rights to different remedies under other laws.

Consumer Affairs must receive your request for arbitration within 6 months of the date your vehicle was delivered to you. The request must be made on an official application provided by Consumer Affairs.

Court: You have the right to proceed to court if you have met the Used Vehicle Warranty Law's requirements and the dealer refuses to refund your money, or if you are not satisfied with your arbitration decision.

Failure to comply with the Used Vehicle Warranty Law is an unfair and deceptive act or practice under the Massachusetts Consumer Protection Act, c. 93A, which may entitle you to double or triple damages, plus court costs and reasonable attorney's fees. If you are considering court action, you should consult an attorney if you purchased your vehicle for more than $2000. You or your attorney must begin by sending the dealer a 30-Day Demand Letter.

OTHER RECOURSE

Implied Warranty Law: The implied warranty of merchantability is a guarantee provided by law in the sale of all consumer products, including automobiles, even if they cost less than $700 or have been driven 125,000 miles or more before sale to you. The implied warranty is in addition to any express, written warranty. Under the implied warranty, a product must do what it was designed to do with "reasonable" safety, efficiency and ease for a "reasonable" period of time. If it does not run properly, the seller is responsible for repair, replacement or a refund. The law does not define the word "reasonable." This will depend in part upon the condition, age, and sale price of the vehicle.

NOTE: The implied warranty of merchantability does not apply to private party sales.

A dealer cannot deny you coverage under this warranty. Under the implied warranty of merchantability, merchants cannot sell products: "AS IS" or "WITH ALL FAULTS." or with a "50/50 WARRANTY" which requires you to split the cost of any repairs with the seller.

The Lemon Aid Law: This law allows you to void or cancel a motor vehicle contract or sale if your vehicle fails to pass inspection within seven days from the date of sale AND if the estimated costs of repairs of emissions or safety related defects exceed 10% of the purchase price. This law applies to both dealer and private party sales of cars and motorcycles purchased for personal or family use. The vehicle must be returned to the seller within 14 days from the date of sale.

Odometer Law: This law prohibits both dealers and private party sellers from turning back or readjusting the odometer or mileage indicated on any automobile offered for sale. If you can prove that the seller reset the odometer, you can sue for $1500 or three times the amount of your damages, whichever is greater, along with court costs and attorney fees. Odometer tampering is also a criminal offense.

Title Requirements: All vehicles must have a certificate of title issued by the Registry of Motor Vehicles and must be properly endorsed at the time of sale. Dealers must inform you, on request, of the name and address of the prior owner of a vehicle.
